The Lane History

In 1919, Henry Lane opened a factory in Newcastle NSW to produce rabbit traps that were in great demand by farmers to fight the rabbit plague. In just a few short years the company's product range had expanded to include such items as can openers, carpet sweepers, spirit stoves and of course locks.

In the 1920's Lane manufactured the first Australian made rim lock. Although there have been other products along the way locks & door furniture have remained the core competency of Lane.

In the 1990's Lane made a decision to specialize in door hardware and added security to its name. Today Lane Security™ continues to develop and bring innovation to the door hardware category.
